

Exposure of birds to self-stimuli is widespread in behavioural studies

Bird species exhibit different reactions to their own reflection in a mirror

Self-odour recognition was evidenced in seabirds

Oscine songbirds exhibit a strong response to the broadcast of the Bird's Own Song

One should consider the role of experience and development in the perception of self